

3rd October, 1933.

Dear Madame Gulbenkian,

It was a great pleasure to me to have the opportunity to meet you again in Paris after so many years, and in such pleasant circumstances.

I hoped until the last minute to be able to call on you in your beautiful home of which I have heard so much, but alas! I was kept so busy until the moment I left I was quite unable to do so, and I had to return here in time for an important sitting.

On my next visit to Paris I certainly will not fail to call upon you, and will let you know in good time.

My wife joins me in our kindest regards, and

I am,

Always yours sincerely,

Madame Gulbenkian,
51, Avenue d'Iéna,
Paris.
