my dear friend

You were talking the other day of looking for a country place to go to for a while. I wonder whether a house near here would be worth your having a look at. It is rather well situated on top of the hill and is a pleasant sort of place with pretty views round. The people who own it are away and it is to let for some months. It would be big enough for you as I think it has about ten bedrooms: and it is not more than a mile from the river and about two miles from Temple golf links. If you like I will find out details - rent and so on - and I can tell you more about it when I next see you. It was at one time occupied by Madame Melba and belongs now to a man named Heath who has very profitable tea interests in India and Ceylon.

Mrs de Laszlo kindly said that she expected me next Wednesday; if that is all right I could find out more about the house and tell you then.
I think it is the sort of place you would like, if the time for which it is available suits you — I do know at the moment when the Heaths are coming back.

Is there any chance of your going to the annual meeting of the Imperial Arts League on Wednesday — at the Academy at 5 P.M.? I shall have to be there, so if you do turn up we can meet there. It might interest you to hear the account of the League's working during the past year.

I hope the Kellogg portrait has been going well and that you are all right always yours

A. L. Baldry.
